Benchmark Magazine Awards Vicon's HDEExpress NVR as a Best Buy

HDEExpress NVR ranked the highest in Ease of Installation, Features and Functions, Image Quality and Performance

Hauppauge, NY: (January 4, 2016) Vicon Industries, Inc. (VII: NYSE-MKT) ("Vicon"), trusted designer and producer of video security systems and high-performance IP cameras, is pleased to announce that its HDEExpress NVR product was awarded a Best Buy by Benchmark magazine in an independent test of Plug-and-Play video systems. HDEExpress, a revolutionary NVR available in 4, 8, and 16 channel versions, received the highest scores in test comparisons between IDIS's DirectIP, Samsung's SRN-1673SP and Tyco's Holis.

Benchmark magazine is a UK-based security publication that provides technology and product assessments through independent testing and field-based analysis. Benchmark conducted their review of four plug-and-play video systems and focused their examination on four primary areas:

- Ease of installation
- Features and functions
- Image quality
- Performance

In their report, published in the January 2016 issue, Benchmark ranked Vicon's HDEExpress NVR with the highest overall score, and the HDEExpress NVR received the highest score in each of the four test categories. Benchmark remarked, "If an installer or integrator is looking for a cost-effective system which can be up and running in a short period of time, which is easy to configure and use, and which cuts time on the site, this [HDEExpress NVR] ticks the boxes."

Benchmark's Best Buy award is granted to products that deliver additional features and functions compared to products at a similar price point. The Best Buy status is only awarded to products that have achieved Recommended or Outstanding status. Benchmark concluded, "What gives the HDEExpress an edge over the others is that it can also compete at a higher level without the need to install additional elements."

"Vicon is honored to be named a Best Buy by Benchmark magazine," said Mark Provinsal, Managing Director for Vicon EMEA. "This distinction validates Vicon's dedication to creating scalable, easy-to-use products that are value-added solutions for our customers."
